Eastern Christchurch has been identified as a Priority Regeneration Area. This is to recognise the need for a partnership approach to maximising opportunities for regeneration of housing and business areas in appropriate locations, improving accessibility to this area, including its significant recreational assets; and supporting this area to adapt to the impacts of climate change and to strengthen resilience. There are on-going discussions on the detail and final spatial extent of this priority area.*

Recap: What are Priority Development Areas?

Priority Development Areas (PDAs) are a mechanism or tool for coordinated and aligned action across multiple agencies to accelerate development in selected areas.

In a nutshell

Priority Development Areas are a key component of the Greater Christchurch Spatial Plan and will be a key tool to progressing shared objectives through the Urban Growth Partnership's Joint Work Programme.

Priority Development Areas are a key tool of the Urban Growth Agenda framework and are areas that the Partnership wishes to focus coordinated effort on.

Priority Development Areas:

- ❖ Provide a mechanism for coordinated, aligned and focused action across multiple agencies
- ❖ Prioritise and unlock investment
- ❖ Drive collective accountability

How have we defined Priority Development Areas in Greater Christchurch?

An agreement among all partners that additional collaboration is required in these areas to maximise the opportunity to shape our urban form towards the desired pattern of growth identified in the Spatial Plan

These are areas that offer significant opportunities to change, such as accelerated urban development at the right scale, environmental change to enhance resilience, or exemplar projects that will reduce harm, encourage behaviour shift or be a catalyst for private investment

There are complex barriers to achieving success, these could be crosscutting issues involving multiple partners, conflicting demands and/or interdependencies, and cross agencies effort is warranted to enhance innovation or pace of change

Without external influences, the market alone will not deliver the desired pattern of growth as identified in the Spatial Plan

All partners will commit to its planning, delivery and invest (time, money and resources) to enable efficiency and generate change.
